Growing Support For Ex-POWs' Claims Against Japan

(Our Own Correspondent)

London, Apr. 20. Support is growing daily for the claim put forward by British ex-Prisoners-of-War in the Far East for compensation against the Japanese.

Nearly 280 MP's of all political parties are supporting the motion in Parliament urging Government to press this claim, meetings are being held up and down the country to put the ex-POWs' case before the public and newspapers are being bombarded with letters on the sub-

There is a strong body of public opinion which believes the signing of the peace treaty with Japan by Britain should be made dependent on guarantees that claims for compensation will be paid.

The London Evening News says today: "The Japanese made much of their so-called chivalrous code of conduct-bushidoin their savagery and arrogant callousness to their prisoners they revealed code as a loathsome sham.

New York Gives MacArthur Rousing Welcome

New York, Apr. 20. The first ranks of an unprecedented throng of 5,000,000 began wild cheers of acclamations as General Douglas. MacArthur stepped from the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel here into a large and open

COMMENT OF THE DAY MacArthur's General

MENERAL MacArthur's eloquent address to Congress cannot fail to have a profound effect, not only in the United States, but elsewhere. It points up, as much as anything could, the wide cleavage between Mr Truman's Administration and General MacArthur on the subject of how the Korea conflict should be politically and militaristically conducted. The General, not unnaturally, chose to avoid stressing the political aspects of the dispute and concentrated on the military problems. In so doing be makes it possible for the unwary to forget that these two facets of the Korea undertaking are inextricably interrelated and complementary. Thus MacArthur commits some injustice when he complains. about laymen severely criticising his -proposals to take-more punitive actionfor the purpose of ending hostilities in Korea. The former Commander-in-Chief of the United Nations forces clearly thought in terms only of military strategy. But the "laymen," which in fact include some of the world's leading statesmen and diplomats, have had to consider wider implications and dangers—the most forbidding being the possibility, even the probability, of setting off World War, III if the bombing of Manchurian bases were approved. General, MacArthur. suggests very broadly that the US Joint Chiefs of Staff concurred with his military assessment of the new situation in Korea created by the entry of Chinese Communist forces into the arena. Moreover, he is probably speaking the truth. But, once again, he ignores the political aspect, and by inference, unfairly hints that the Chiefs of Staff were guilty of the same thing. More likely is it that the Chiefs could not rest on that consideration alone; knew that to adopt Mac-Arthur's proposed strategy would be to invite an immediate extension of warfare into global proportions, and agreed with President Truman and others that any policy or action which might bring about such a result would be disastrous and unforgivable. General MacArthur indulged in a challenging address, and not only on the issues. His analysis Colonialism, for example, is open to considerable dispute, notably his inference that the only worthy demonstration of enlightened tutelage is that of the United States in the Philippines. Britain can afford to dismiss such an ungenerous statement with an indulgent smile, but the discerning will note it as one of several unbalanced portions of the General's speech. His references to present conditions in Formosa, for instance, were naive and propagandist. What can be conceded is that General MacArthur developed his theme carefully and well. That at no stage did he give the impression of being on the defensive. Moreover, his views and conclusions, no matter if it is impossible to concur with them, command respect. It is, perhaps, the most unfortunate feature of controversies of this nature that only history can decide which is the right answer. It would be childish to deny that Mac-Arthur's speech has added fuel to an already dangerous political conflagration in the United States, but he was entitled to be hourd, and it remains to Singapore, Apr. 20. his credit that he invested his appearance before Congress (and for that matter before the world) with dignity and sincerity.

Description Of Anzac Day Cenotaph Service To Be Relayed By Radio Hongkong Opera House Orchestra, Covent | (Korn): Rose Marie (Frimi) Love's

The name 'Anzac' is derived from the initials of a Dominion force employed at Gallipoli in the First World War—Australian and New Zealand Army Corps-which brought glory upon itself on the 25th April 1915 by storming its way at dawn through the beaches of Gallipoli, in the Dardanelles, to attack enemy forces entrenched in the precipitous hills beyond.

Anzac Day, on the 25th of April each year, became after that a day of commemoration and mourning for Australians and New Zealanders all over the world, and since World War II it has also been in common noration of the Fallen in both World Wars. This year, for the first time, the services will honour the Fallen of the Australians and New Zealanders in Korea with the United Nations forces.

Tomorrow is the Sunday immediately before Anzac Day, and the Commemoration Service will be held at the Cenotaph, Statue Square, at 9.45 a.m. A description of the Combined Services Parade by a Services Commentator will be relayed by Radio Hongkong at that time.

Detachments taking part in the Parade vill, fittingly, include one officer and twenty ratings from the New Zealand Frigate Hawea, which is now in Hongkong waters on a brief visit.

Monday is 23rd April - a date of double significance for Englishmen. It is the day which was set aside long ago for the Patron Saint of England, St George, and also it is the anniversary of the birth of Shakespeare, England's greatest poet. "England and St George" at 7.30 p.m. on Monday links the commemoration of the Saint with that of the Bard by telling the age-old tale of St George and the Dragon and by recalling some of Shakespeare's greatest lines on war and peace. This is a BBC recording and the cast includes Robert Harris, Grizelda Hervey, and Ralph Truman. The music is arranged by Alfred Niemann.

Another BBC programme on Monday is "The Englishman's Music" which comes at 10.15 p.m. It is a panorama of the native music of England, played and sung by men, women and children who make music because they like it. There are brass bands from Cornwall and the North Country, a bar-full of quarrymen, shepherds and farmers singing 'Ilkla Moor' in a Yorkshire pub, an amateur string orchestra in Derby, the Singer's Club in Birmingham, and the Royal Marines down at Chatham putting all they know into 'Lilliburlero'. There are even the bellringers in the tower of a Suffolk village church.

1.10 NEWS ANALYSIS.

It's not Pop's night out, but he decides to take off anyway and go gamboling over hillside with some of his buddies. While mother had her hands—and pouch—full with Junior, he hopped, jumped and skipped. Plot will thicken by leaps and bounds.

"A soul just can't turn one's back for a minute . . . HENREE-EE! COME HERE!"

A BIT OF A BOUNDER-

IKE MOST animals—and humans—Australian kangaroos enjoy community life. Simlilarly, they possess numerous frailties often found in man. The photos on this page show a side of their family life which bears out that fact—the story of the husband who enjoys being "out with the boys" and what happens when Mama put her paw down.
An alert cameraman, James Fitzpatrick, made the series among a mob of kangaroos near Lake Macquarie, New South Wales. The region, south of the big industrial town of Newcastle, is holiday resort for miners and their families from northern coal fields. Animals come down from hills and gather about motor camps to forage for discarded scraps.

OH-OH! Here we go again. I'll certainly have to think up a good one in a hurry!"

"NOW, DEAR—don't lose your temper . . . I was just visiting a sick friend!"

A second looks slett Pop dops. An old bystander by new Junior has reflect to storm collar as Mont begins to be all Vop.

CIR Robert Watson-Watt, whose claim as the inventor of radar comes before the Royal Commission of Awards to Inventors this week, tapped a thick sheaf of papers with a pencil and said to me "February 27, 1935, is a vital date."

On that day Sir Robert had sent a report to the Air Ministry on how aircraft could be located by radio.

He had that year been asked for his views on a death ray, but he thought "mighty little" of the idea. Radiolocation, he believed, was "more promising." Already he had located lightning flash 3,000 miles away.

UNFAIR ON KOVALESKI DORFMAN

The check on the roving careers of the three American tennis stars, Dorothy Head, Kovaleski and Dorfman, banned until further notice from any more tournaments with expenses, has rekindled the general dislike of the eight weeks' rule which works so unfair-It needs adjustment.

Players may take expenses from eight tournaments in a year, but there is no limit to the number in which they can have their expenses paid when they are officially nominated. Those who get the most nominations—and there seems little regard for the equal distribution of this privilege-get

THE BREEDING AND PEDIGREES OF BRITISH RACE HORSES

NIGEL GEE

Earlier in this series I mentioned that the racehorses of the world descend from three sires, Eclipse, Herod and -Matchem.-We-have-already-seen-by-what-slender-threads nangs the male line of Herod in Britain through The Tetrarch. Now we come to the only remaining male line of Matchem in Britain, precariously maintained by the descendants of Hurry On.

Hurry On traces back to West Australian, who in 1853 was the first horse to win the Triple Crown in England. His son Solon got the unbeaten Barcaldine, who in turn was the sire of Marco, winner of the Cambridgeshire. Marco's son Marcovil won the same race, and at stud got Hurry On. It is strange that winners of the Cambridgeshire, which is a nine-furlong handicap, should be the originators of two great families, for Polymelus, sire of Phalaris, also won this event.

Check Your Superstitions

By MILDRED L. KING

T'S odd! It's even spooky! But do you know the word "superstitious" has 18 letters in it.

Don't look over your left shoulder now or your luck may Pooh! Not superstitious? Well. let's see! If you haven't just one little, teeny weeny pet superstition you are different from millions of others.

Tosts show that almost half the grown-ups believe in one or more of the common superstltions which are nothing more nor less than hang-overs from the Middle, Ages.

But how about you? Check the following list. Here you have 13 of the most common popular beliefs that are going around. How many do you believe in? GOOD LUCK: Rabbit's foot; four-leaf clover; knocking on wood; crossing your fingers. BAD LUCK: Black cat crossing your path; walking under a ladder; breaking a mirror; the number 13, especially Friday the 13th; spilling salt; opening an umbrella in a house; cutting out a dress on Friday; picking comb off the floor without first stepping on it; allowing and your pal on the street.

mone checks indicate you are really super-superstitious. But don't worry. You have of company. Even though modern science has debunked all the old-time superstitions most people still believe in keeping on the good

Part 2. In this you use only the key squares on each line. You must have the correct fiveletter word to do this. Write one letter in each key-square to make a new and different sixletter word. CRITICISM

100 many people resent criticism. Criticism isn't always an attack on you, or your organisation. Often simply, pointing out ways to improve yourself or your group.

Supposing you formed a club of young people for a worthy purpose and some one came along and claimed your club was a waste of time. The first impulse would be to call the critic a lot of names. But before you do, it might be well to check. If your club wastes time, or isn't as worthy as you want it to be, you should correct the fault. If the club has been unjustly criticised you should prove to the critic that it is a worthy organisation.

Criticism therefore corrects faults and clears up misunderstandings. Carried beyond your group, it is important in our form of government. It is not only a privilege, but a duty to criticise. If you are right, your criticism will bring about improvement in civic affairs. If you are wrong, you'll be right so that you'll be improved. Nothing is lost by honest criticism.

Some years ago, we recall, there was a fellow in Europe named Hitler, who had a lot of critics. The critics he could lay his hands on went to concentration camps and he paid no attention to others. In the long run, he caused a lot of grief and made nobody happy. There are fellows today who should listen to critics but don't.

It isn't smart not to listen.

When a sailor came to tell him that supper was ready, the Captain shook his head, couldn't leave the wheel. "Bring me a bucket of coffee and a dozen or so of the fried cakes my missus sent along," the Captain ordered.

While the sailor steadled the wheel, the Captain gulped the coffee and set to work hungrily on the circular fried cakes that looked like big-solid biscuits. Then he saw a great wave galloping for the little vessel like a runaway horse, He would need both hands to hold the wheel when that struck! But what could he do with the fried cakes?

Captain speared the fried cakes on a spoke of the wheel ... and invented the hole in the doughnut!

Madrid, Apr. 20. thousand workers were idle today at 27 mills at Manressa, a textile town near Barcelona, where lock-out has followed a "folded arms" sirike.

Most of the workers are women. They began the strike -- by -- reporting --- for work at regular hours but sat reading and chatting. Two days ago factories were closed and guarded by police. Efforts to spread the dispute to neighbouring towns are reported to have been unsuccessful and mills there were working normally today.—Reuter.

Mr Gordon-Walker said that the Commonwealth was in some ways the most important trading area in the world, accounting for about one-third of the world's trade. The acceptance by all its members of the responsibilities of friendship and long-term considerations contributed largely to the Commonwealth's economic stability.

"radical" Referring to the economic changes throughout the Commonwealth in the past years, the Minister said. "These changes have not yet gone for enough to destroy the basic pattern of Commonwealth trade—and I think they never

One significant change was that Britain was now raising more of her own food at home and exporting more capital goods. The shift in the pattern of Commonwealth trade had been counteracted by Commonwealth's common effort to solve 'the dollar shortage problem.

INCREASED SALES

Dollar economy had meant increased sales of Sterling goods in the Commonwealth, Mr Gordon-Walker said. In 1950, 43 per cent of British imports came Commonwealth countries about favoured the admission of Japan from Commonwealth sources compared with 37 per cent be- recommended by small arms Alleging that the New York free member of the United fore the war. BRITISH ARMY-CETS

London, Apr. 20. Britain is to equip ber soldLers with a new automatic rifle which her military men believe will be the best in the world

This means that attempts to standardise the weapons and bullets of all the Atlantic Pact countries have fallen through. the For the new British rifle will fire a .280-inch calibre bullet, which is smaller than most other armies use.

The Americans have refused to fall in line with this because they have huge stocks of their standard pattern rifle and its .30-inch automatic ammunition.

Britain has told the other her new weapon, which

The now rifle will be lighter more accurate up to about 1,000 be able to carry more ammunithus easing supply

It means good-bye ultimately to the veteran of three wars, the Lee Enfield, which with modifications-has-been-the-standard weapon here since Britain fought the Boers in South Africa half a century ago.

The Lee Enfield weighs nine pounds, three ounces, and fires a .303 inch bullet,-Router.
